Adopted from Four Ways to Wisdom by Angeles Arrien

Choose to be Present

Warrior/Leader Principle
When we choose to be present, to become “visible,” we are able through example and intention, to empower and inspire others by what we model.
We extend honor and respect, set limits and boundaries, and align words with actions.

Tell the truth without blame or judgment

Healer Principle
This principle guides individuals to observe where in their experience they are half-hearted rather than open-hearted, when they carry a doubting heart rather than a clear heart, and when they are experiencing weak-heartedness rather than strong-heartedness.

Pay Attention to Heart and Meaning

Visionary Principle
Truthfulness, authenticity and integrity are essential keys to developing our vision and intuition.
The task here is to come forward fully with our gifts, talents, and resources and to powerfully meet the tests and challenges of life.

Be Open to, not attached to, Outcome

Teacher Principle
Traditional societies believe wisdom is flexible and fluid, never positional.
The human resource of wisdom is accessed by learning how to trust and how to be comfortable with states of not knowing.
